Total amount

- Temryuk district is one of the major agricultural districts of the Krasnodar region.
- Agriculture is like an open-air 'workshop'.
- There are 57 large farms and 229 small peasant farms involved in processing agricultural products in the district.
- One of the main focuses is grape growing and wine production. In Kuban region, 75% of the vineyards cover an area of 18,000 hectares, yielding over 100,000 tonnes of grapes each year.
- In 2022, a record was set for grape production, surpassing any previous records in the Soviet Union or modern Russia. Over 200,000 tonnes of grapes were harvested, with an average yield of 129,6 c/ha.

Recreational resources

- In Temryuk district, there are salt and fresh estuaries, wetlands, and shallow channels in the Kuban delta.
- The beaches along the Sea of Azov have fine shell and quartz sand, whereas the beaches on the Taman Peninsula along the Black Sea are sandy.
- Temryuk district is washed by two seas at once — the Black Sea and the Sea of Azov — the Taman Peninsula boasts a coastline that stretches for more than 220 km. This area is popular among tourists due to its scenic landscapes, medicinal clay, and rich archaeological and cultural sites. Over 1 million visitors come here every year, and the district sees a continuous increase in the number of guests annually.
- There are over 400 places to stay, 39 tourist spots, and 35 groomed beaches.
- Many historical and archaeological monuments, such as ancient temples, ancient sites, and Lermontov's house in Taman, attract tourists every year. Visitors come not only from Russia but also from distant countries seeking relaxation and new experiences.
- The favorable climate and geographical location of Temryuk district provide resources for developing different types of tourism, including resort and health resort, beach, children's, sports, tours, ethnographic, as well as agrarian, gastronomic, and wine tourism.
